

Ownership Culture

Managing in the Superstar Economy

Noah Putnam // April 2021

If you want to build a ship, don't drum up the men to gather wood, divide the work, and give orders. Instead, teach them to yearn for the vast and endless sea.

Antoine de Saint-Exupery

INSIGHT

The value is in the tail

Developers code less than one hour per day

Based on data from 250K+ developers in our global community, developers code 52 minutes per day — about 4 hours and 21 minutes during a normal workweek from Monday to Friday.¹

Code time global percentiles¹

Engineer Net Contribution to Repository

Productivity Percentile

INSIGHT

The best people crave ownership. Most jobs are terrible at giving it to them.

Ownership culture exists when...

- Team members feel like they are making meaningful decisions
- Team members take pride in the product and the features they work on
- Team members are never surprised by a manager's decision or opinion

SCENARIO

Implementing a new process

SCENARIO

Implementing a
new process

- Not respecting people's ownership
- No limit on number of process changes
- Placing burden of testing process on entire team

SCENARIO

Implementing a
new process

SCENARIO

Implementing a
new process

SCENARIO

Implementing a
new process

SCENARIO

Implementing a
new process

- Lead by example + have skin in game
- Give people ownership over whether they follow or not
- Docs reflect the policy as practiced, not as originally conceptualized

QUESTION

Where do managers fit in?

MANAGER JOB

1. Earn leadership capital
2. Spend it to get the job done

You earn leadership capital when...

- You give credit for a win to a team member
- You take personal accountability for a loss
- You persuade a team member to go your way
- You take negative feedback constructively from a team member
- You let someone overrule you on a question related to their sphere of ownership

You spend leadership capital when...

- You take a risk on a project
- You implement a new process for others to follow
- You give negative feedback to a team member
- You overrule a team member on a decision related to something that they own
- You don't build consensus when making an important decision

Leadership
Capital

Time

Leadership
Capital

AUTHORITY \neq ORG CHART

AUTHORITY = LEADERSHIP CAPITAL

QUESTION

How do you deal with people who don't want to buy into ownership culture?

INSIGHT

Leadership means everyone on the team is your boss

Ask yourself...

- What is your balance of leadership capital with them?
- Is this your fault for not communicating clearly? How could you have managed them differently to achieve better results?
- Does this person have the potential to be an A player?

Feedback should always be given in private

INSIGHT

“Talent” is highly dependent on the cultural context – but it’s mostly fixed within that context

- The Animal Test
- Trust your gut, but know your biases
- Be terrified of growing the team

MANAGER JOB

1. Earn leadership capital
2. Spend it to get the job done

MANAGER JOB

0. Define the job

1. Earn leadership capital

2. Spend the capital to get the job done

- Embrace repeating yourself
- Write important things down
- Manage each stakeholders' vision individually

More Resources

- OG Netflix Culture Deck
- The Hard Thing About Hard Things - Ben Horowitz
- High Output Management - Andy Grove

Questions? Comments?

My DMs are open on Twitter

twitter.com/noah_putnam

